

SCHLEY BLOCKADE HOPE TO GET HER LIFE SPARED UNTIL THE $10,000 RANSOM CAN BE RAISED.

Capt. Folger Said It Would Not Have Been Effectual During Rainy or Foggy Weather.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The Schley Court of Inquiry today entered upon the third straight week of the investigation of Admiral Schley's conduct in the Spanish war.

The day's proceedings began with the recall of Lieut. Dupont and Commander Rodgers for the purpose of correcting their previous testimony, and when they had been excused, Admiral Schley, the commanding officer of the Brooklyn during the Santiago campaign, resumed the stand.

The witness, in describing the battle off Santiago, said: "The Brooklyn did all she could. She got into the line as quick as steam could carry her there. We commenced firing as soon as the first gun on the port bow would bear, and we kept the port battery firing until the arc, using the main battery, we got all the starboard guns to bear, and we got around as quickly as we could with port helm until we almost paralleled the course of the leading Spanish vessel."

Engaged Three Ships. "When the helm was cast the ship steered a course parallel with the Viscaya, which was then the leading vessel. Although the Viscaya was probably a little further to the westward than the Viscaya, she was standing at an angle into the line of the Brooklyn."

"God Bless the Oregon." "At this time the smoke was so dense I could not see anything and I supposed that the New Oregon was the leading vessel. I looked in that direction and saw the heavy bow of the ship. I saw that it must be the Massachusetts."

Afraid of Treachery. "We had our guns trained on the Oregon all the time in case of treachery or any act of that kind on her part, although I saw her throwing her guns overboard, I did not suspect anything of that kind."

The witness said that the Commodore had occupied a place on a platform around the conning tower during the engagement. This position was a position of danger, as the Commodore was there always in full view of the enemy's ships.

"Damn the Texas." At this point Mr. Hayner questioned the witness as to length concerning his reported colloquy with Admiral Schley during the battle off Santiago in which the Commodore was reported to have said "Damn the Texas."

PUMPERNICKEL'S CLAN RATIFIES THE TICKETS.

Crocker-Set Low Club Gets Together and Some Ideas Are Given on the Candidates.

Pumpernickel was the first man in the back room of the Pell street saloon last night. He had called a special meeting of the Crocker-Set Low Club to ratify the nominations of the Tammany and the Fusion tickets.

"There was no use disguising the fact; Pumpernickel was swelled up because he had been elected president of the club as a compromise candidate of the Irish faction."

President "Paddy" O'Brien came in. Pumpernickel gave him the Cian-na-Gael salute and ejaculated: "Erin-go-bragh, already!"

Not to be outdone in politeness, O'Brien hitched up his overalls, spat on his hands and said: "Geh sundlett, begerat!"

"The Cricket" then pushed through the swinging doors and, ordering three "scops," paid for them out of a pocket of silver that excited wide comment.

O'Brien, in speaking about the incident later in the evening, said: "It do be funny how a man can go on a committee to see candidates and be after coming back with the clothes of him full of the good old rhino!"

When "Chick" Connors and the others arrived Pumpernickel rapped on a beer keg and the meeting came to order.

"Say, gent's," said Connors, "I move you this club be called the Shepard-Set Low Club and that the two of the candidates be O. K. A."

The motion was carried and "The Cricket" remarked: "May the devil get the last wan under the wire."

O'Brien drained his "scop," wiped his mouth with the sleeve of his "jumper" and said: "I was after drinking last night and your face also, too, Schmitt."

Set Low and Thomas C. Platt, Esquire, I dreamed they was law-abids in Ireland together. And I dreamed there was two pigs to be divided between them. And at the time I was dreaming I was eating a measly bit of a razor-back rooster that was as thin as a letter of acceptance.

bedad. One morning Thomas C. Platt, Esquire, says he, "I'll be after taking the big fat pig in lying dead in the ditch beyond, bad cess to him!"

Pumpernickel moved his mouth as if he were about to speak and there was silence.

"I hear me some things yesterday," he began, "on which I will make me some observations. A Brooklyn man who has been away already for two couple of dozen years, come along side my old friend Edward M. Sheepman. He grabbed him by his both hands already and he expressed himself."

"Hello, there, Schmitt. We befidan Sie sich? Mine choice and crackers, you have changed your clothing already since the last time I have saw you!"

"So?" said Edward. "The Brooklyn man, and I was saw already you have changed your face also, too, Schmitt."

I was after drinking last night and your face also, too, Schmitt. I dreamed they was law-abids in Ireland together. And I dreamed there was two pigs to be divided between them. CAMPAIGN ON IN NEW JERSEY.

FRANKLIN MURPHY BEGINS WORK AMONG REPUBLICANS.

Mayor Seymour Will Try to Win Workingmen in the Factories.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 7.—Franklin Murphy, the Republican candidate for Governor, started from Newark today on a tour of the State. He spoke at the Monmouth County Republican convention at Freehold this afternoon and subsequently visited neighboring towns.

Mr. Murphy will not resign the chairmanship of the Republican State committee, but will leave the routine work to be looked after by Senator McCarter and Winton C. Garrison, of Newark.

He proposes to make a complete canvass of all the cities and towns in the twenty-one counties of the State, making one or more speeches at each stopping place.

Mayor Seymour, of Newark, the Democratic candidate for Governor, expects to be formally notified of his nomination late today. It is generally understood that he will not resign the Mayorship, but this will not interfere with his making an active canvass. He expects to make a favorable impression and win votes among the workingmen.

Notwithstanding this view, however, the State Department has not abandoned its efforts. The Acting Secretary of State, Mr. Adee, says that too much publicity would do the cause of the department has in view. It is certain, however, that Bulgaria is the focus of the attention of a tender of ransom, although informed also that the ransom is not to be paid to the United States Government, Bulgaria, in the official view, is the party responsible and must answer for the safety of the Government for any failure to act in the interests of the captive.

The State Department has dealt only with the governments of Turkey and Bulgaria, as it would be impossible for it to hold any relations with outlawed. It has practically notified Bulgaria, through its consular agent, Mr. Dickinson, that it will hold the Government responsible for Miss Stone's safety.

The chief difficulty lies in the fact, though, that the Bulgarian Government appears powerless to insure the safety of the prisoner, and that she is absolutely at the mercy of a band of men who are under no restraint and who cannot be apprehended.

spirited fight. Locked in close embrace, the three men rolled about on the pavement, while a crowd gathered about them.

Mr. Geer made a game fight, but the odds were too much for him and the men ran into a saloon on the corner. Mr. Geer followed and seized a chair. Brandishing it above his head, he called upon his assailants to surrender. Both men had discarded their weapons and attempt at intoxication and tried to pass it off as a joke.

They offered to buy a drink and to pay Mr. Geer not to harm them. While they were talking a hoodlum opened the front door, permitting the three men to escape. Mr. Geer followed them toward Seventh avenue where they disappeared.
